

MORE THAN AN INTERNSHIP; A CHANCE TO FIND MY PLACE AT WEP CLINICAL

By Elle Tsiros
Global HR Coordinator

When I joined WEP Clinical as a Business Administration Intern during my junior year of college, I was simply hoping to find an internship that would give me a meaningful experience and help me grow. What I found was so much more. From the very beginning, I could see how much people at WEP cared about each other and about the company's mission. Everyone was genuinely invested in helping one another succeed, and that sense of teamwork immediately stood out to me.

As an intern, I was encouraged to explore and learn from different departments across the company. Team members from Quality Assurance and Project Management took time out of their day to sit down with me, share their own career stories, and offer advice on professional development. Those conversations taught me the value of connection and mentorship, and they made me feel supported in every step of my journey.

One of the most impactful parts of my internship was working closely with the Business Development team. I had the opportunity to source potential agencies for partnership and see how WEP builds strong relationships across the industry. I learned how different teams collaborate toward one common goal. That experience opened my eyes to the bigger picture of what we do at WEP and how every department plays a role in making a difference.

Throughout my internship, I discovered strengths that I hadn't fully recognized before, such as my ability to build relationships, adapt quickly, pay attention to detail, and truly listen to others. These qualities helped me succeed during my internship and have become the foundation of my career growth since.

Key Takeaway

After ten months of interning, I was thrilled to accept a full-time position as Global HR Coordinator. It felt like a natural next step because WEP had already become a place where I was learning, growing, and contributing in meaningful ways.

Now, I get to welcome new employees into the same supportive culture that shaped my own experience. Every day, I'm reminded of how my journey started, as an intern who was given the chance to learn, grow, and find her place in a company that truly believes in its people.
