

WHY I RETURNED TO WEP CLINICAL: A JOURNEY OF GROWTH, COMPASSION, AND BELONGING

By Kristen Cushman
Finance Officer

I first joined WEP Clinical in 2016 as a Business Administrator, eager to contribute to a company whose mission and values truly resonated with me. From the beginning, I felt inspired by the collaborative and supportive environment. As the company grew, so did my opportunities. I was trained to take on additional responsibilities, and over time, I transitioned into a Finance role - allowing me to expand my skills, deepen my understanding of the business, and make a greater impact on the organization.

In 2022, after six incredible years, I made the difficult decision to leave and explore what else was out there. I wanted to see how my skills could translate elsewhere and experience a different professional environment. But almost immediately, I realized that what I had left behind was extraordinary. The culture, compassion, and genuine care at WEP Clinical could not be replicated. The professional environments I encountered during my time away lacked the sense of purpose, community, and integrity I had grown to value so deeply.

Returning to WEP Clinical in 2024 was a profoundly meaningful decision - especially because it came during one of the most challenging periods of my life, following the unexpected loss of my husband. The compassion, empathy, and support I experienced from the team during that time were life-changing. They didn't just welcome me back - they embraced me with kindness and understanding, reinforcing that WEP Clinical isn't just a place to work, but a community that truly cares.

Throughout my career, which began when I was 17, I never imagined finding an organization that genuinely "walks the walk." WEP Clinical is more than a company - it's a space where employees are valued as people first and professionals second. It's an environment that nurtures growth, encourages learning, and inspires every single day.

Key Takeaway

Returning to WEP Clinical reinforced a lesson I will carry with me forever: a company's culture is not just a set of words - it's an experience, a daily practice, and in the case of WEP Clinical, it's something extraordinary. I am grateful every day to be part of this organization, to contribute to its mission, and to grow within a team that truly cares.
